Narrative Techniques for Business:

Surveys and metrics can uncover trouble in an organisation, but they usually don't help you identify the reasons for dysfunctions, let alone generate the resolve to springboard people into action.

Instead, learn to use stories as listening posts and tap into the emotion to spark action. From time immemorial, stories have contained collective lessons in condensed form. When gathered and examined, stories that are told in your organisation reveal important themes and patterns.

This program teaches you how to collect narrative, how to use it as the basis for understanding what is really going on, and how to use this understanding to identify the actions that will have the greatest effect.

Storytelling for Business Leaders:

We all need better ways to persuade, share what we know and help those around us make sense of the complex world we live in.

Developing our innate storytelling skills helps build confidence, convey ideas clearly and effectively, and probably most importantly, present to our colleagues our humanity.

This workshop is for anyone wanting to improve their ability to find and tell their own stories within a business context.

Building a Collaborative Workplace:

This highly interactive full-day workshop is designed to help participants to create a collaboration capability in their organisations, be they public sector, private enterprise or not-for-profit.

The trouble most managers face is that collaboration is a spontaneous thing that thrives in some environments and doesn't in others; it emerges, yet it is rarely taught. This workshop is designed to meet this current need of business managers and leaders to systematically build a collaboration capability. Participants will understand what they need to do and ask their leaders to do, in order to help people connect together and work better in a collaborative manner.
